

The invention relates to the method and device for printing of graphic and text materials, which include the photos certifying personality, on the layers stitched into one whole, in particular, on the passports and similar documents.