

Invention relates to the technology of producing of polymeric articles, for example, glass-plastic obtained by the method of winding of the fiberglass filler impregnated with bonding agent.

Method includes winding of pre-impregnated fiberglass filler on rotary mandrel-mount, hardening at elevated temperatures with the aid of high-frequency electromagnetic field and subsequent cooling down to the ambient temperature.