

Disclosed method relates to working of metals by pressure and can be used for producing the bimetallic working parts of dies and molds.

Method is implemented by extrusion of a cavity in the billet, which consists of basis and plated part in the form of insert of the simple form (cylinder or parallelepiped) inserted flush into the blind hole in the basis.