

The invention relates to the pharmacy. The antiallergic polysaccharide complex is obtained by extracting the plant raw material, separating the pellet followed by drying and grinding. The leaves of the blackcurrant are extracted at 1:5-6 ratio, the extract is stripped to  $1/7$  of its initial volume and precipitated with four volumes of ethanol.