

The invention relates to blasting operations. The method includes holding of opened end of finite-end sleeve over a well, it is placed with possibility of feeding it, with supply of substance to sleeve and deceleration of sleeve that is performed with force exceeding of equal to friction force of substance fed with the sleeve.