

The invention relates to automation, computer engineering and can be used in control systems as well as in automatic processing of text language information.

The functional generator comprises an analog-to-digital and digital-analog converters as well as a decode circuit including a two-input element.