

The invention relates to equipment of food industry, in particular to that of meat preparation and preservation industry, and allows improving the operation conditions of meat mincers to mince meat and to raise the stability of the quality of products. An attachment consists of knives and grates, arranged on an output shaft in series, which are arranged in a cylinder of a meat mincer and fixed through an intermediate bushing with the aid of a hold-down nut.