

An apparatus for bringing into unserviceable condition of imprints on the carrier during displacement of the carrier contains, at least, one marking device intended for application of special marking on the imprints of securities. The marking device includes a linear engine installed motionlessly, and a marker fixed on the moving part of said engine.