

The invention relates to implementation of blast operations. The method includes placement of elongated of explosive charges with line of initiators, initiation of each line in one of connection layout of external blasting network and initiation of each initiator in line in same time intervals. The initiators are placed at distance one from another.