

The invention relates to the field of agriculture, more precisely to plant growth regulators and can be used for obtaining a substance stimulating plant development. A method is realized by means of alkaline extraction with the further neutralization for obtaining a neutralized aqueous extract.