

The invention relates to agricultural machine-building and can be used for digging roots. A disk consists of a hub and a rim connected between each other with the aid of spokes.