

The invention relates to brewing industry, processes for preparation of malt. An improved process for preparation of dark malt, wherein increased coloration and shortened cycle of production process is provided at specified temperature and humidity at drying the dark malt.