

The invention is used in brewing industry for production of "Donetsk dark" beer. A process is created, wherein due to new mode of carrying out of mash saccharification process and ratio of bright and dark malt allows to obtain beer with high content of alcohol, coloration and reduce consumption of raw material.