

The invention relates to transport machine building and can be used as suspension unit of transportation means. A hydraulic lever shock absorber contains a lever and a housing of hydraulic cylinder with a piston with choke openings and bypass valves placed in it, in this case the rotational axle of lever is located in the middle of the housing of hydraulic cylinder.