

The invention relates to buildings and can be used at building of dwelling house, cottage and outhouse buildings mostly in individual building. The building includes installed on basement covered with grid made of inclined slats walls made of panels for following filling with clay-stray mix and plaster, those include door and window boxes for doors and windows, panels of top roofing with prominent beams for installation of roof frame and inner partitions of premises made of light-weight panels.