

The invention relates to the medicine, in particular to phthysiatry and may be used for treating the patients in whom the pulmonary tuberculosis was detected for the first time. The method comprises enteral-parenteral administration of antituberculous drugs and subcutaneous injections of tuberculin.