

The invention relates to the area of wind-power machine-building, in particular to wind engines with vertical position of rotor shaft. The appliance has vertical mast with symmetrically placed with respect to it, kinematically connected to each other wind wheels with blades.