

The invention relates to indicators for finding of definite place in the reference publications, for example, dictionaries, reference books, catalogs. An indicator contains a protrusion connected with fastening element. The protrusion is made with possibility of turning, and a fastening element is made in the form of a base, in this case the protrusion has an area of decreased hardness near base.