

The invention relates to the ferrous metallurgy, in particular to the blast-furnace production and can be used at the processing in the blast-furnace of low-manganese alkali-containing raw material. A method includes loading and smelting thereof in blast-furnace, periodical tapping of smelting products. A change of alkali metal oxides yield is determined by analysis of slug.