

A cabinet of complete distribution device containing a metal case with a bottom divided on chambers - chamber of mains, linear buses and sliding element, the latter is executed in the form of a carriage at which vertical frame high-voltage transformers, safety devices, movable split contacts are fastened. Bars of the contacts are fixed with aid of holding base insulators to the vertical frame channel. At the top of frame a metal rectangular box is installed with row of set lead terminals; the buses of chamber pass through the bushing insulators; at the case bottom guides for carriage a removable fixer, a slider contact knife and a bracket are installed.