

The invention relates to methods for obtaining of mixed engine fuel, containing several components, for example, products of coke and petrochemical production.

A method comprises dosed tangential supply into mixing cylindrical reservoir of high-octane aromatic fraction of by-product-coking production and low-octane oil or gas gasoline.