

The invention relates to humanized antibodies and to proteins binding them , able to bind T-cells and, in particular subpopulations thereof. The invention relates also to obtaining of such antibodies, to pharmaceutical compositions containing these antibodies and to therapeutic use of these antibodies.