

The invention relates to biotechnology and agricultural microbiology, in particular to a method for obtaining a preparation regulating the development of a wide circle of plants. The method includes cultivating a microorganism on a liquid nutrient medium with the further isolation of the metabolic products.