

The invention relates to automation, computer engineering and can be used in control systems as well as during automatic processing of text language information.

The functional generator comprises an analog-to-digital converter, the input being an information input of the functional generator and a digital-analog converter, the output being an information output. The decode circuit includes a two-input element.