

The invention relates to the field of medicine. The appliance has tank with physiological solution, electrodes connected to organ under study and measuring device.