

The invention relates to motor-car building, in particular to propulsion engineering, namely to design of cylinder head of CE with stepped volume of compression space (combustion chamber). The head has placed in it valve mechanism, channels for supply and discharge of gases, cavities for cooling liquid and combustion chamber with respective sockets for installation of spark plugs or nozzles and valves.