

The invention relates to power engineering, machine-building, and can be used in turbines for transformation of flow energy to energy of rotation of different technical devices, in particular to energy of rotation of electric energy generator. Working wheel has cowl and blade unit that consists of blades and rims.