

The complex of the aggregate processing of waste metallurgical slags is equipped with a driving rotating rattle drum with perforated unloading part and the conveyor mounted under it, screen and additional containers under for output product of rattle drum, oversize and undersize products respectively. The screen is placed between the conveyor and the container for oversize product. The internal drum surface is equipped with longitudinal and inclined segmental guides mounted in loading and unloading parts of the drum on the opposite sides and in mutually opposite directions.