

The invention proposed relates to geophysical methods of survey and search of mineral beds and can be used at seismic survey of anisotropic geological media. The method prescribes use of surface well unit for survey, excitation, reception and registration of direct wave, processing and transformation of seismo-records.