

The invention relates to the medical industry, namely to the manufacture of Septefril-B in tablets. The method comprises the addition of Decametoxin to the excipients followed by moistening, drying, granulation, and compression. The aqueous solution of Decametoxin is added in the process of moistening of the excipients.