

The invention relates to building elements made of thermo-plastic suitable for quick erection of module structures through mutual coupling of ready for assemblage building elements and to building structures made of those.