

The disclosed invention relates to the field of nuclear-power engineering in particular to a biological protection and can be used in manufacturing containers for radioactive material disposal as well as in construction of protective shelters.

The method provides to get a concrete mixture including cement, sand, chip, filler and water, ingredient mixing prior receipt of intimate mixture, the following forming and dehumidifying.