

The invention relates to the sphere of civil engineering, in particular to the manual tool used at plastering. Tool for the plaster leveling, smoothing and toweling has a base, a handle, a working surface, at that along the long sides of the base bottom part it is provided with rectangular cutting edges to which the cylindrical grooves are adjacent and transferred into the rounded edges of the working surface which is located with the down shoulder in relation to the cutting edges.