

The invention relates to the devices for periodic pouring metal created on the base of induction channel furnaces. A device contains a basis, a frame, a crucible with a discharge channel installed on the frame, a fireproof block, an inductor, an electromagnet and a drive for turning the device in vertical plane.