

The invention relates to the field of rectification of fermented solutions, in particular to the production of ethyl alcohol. A method comprises rectification, selection of fusel fraction from dishes of rectification column and separation from it of fusel oil in the apparatus.