

Method for soil treatment with radionuclide removal is based on use of granulated carbon-mineral sorbent as collecting material, this after removal of plant cover is taken out from soil and utilized. The invention relates to environment protection, technology of deactivation of soils polluted with radioactive elements as result of accidents at nuclear power plants.