

The invention relates to the procedure of obtaining wheaten germs at baking grindings, in particular, in grain-cleaning departments of flour milling plants. A method includes preliminary preparation of grain for grinding, step by step peeling of grain with separation of by-products of peeling, isolation of the germ from the products of peeling, its drying and packaging.