

Articulated coupling between two transport modules connected by self-supporting intermediate module, in which the front and rear modules of transport means are articulated. The articulation is supplemented with the means of angular correction of the direction of front module according to the direction of rear module with low-sensitivity area in the center on both sides from the straight line.