

The invention relates to the area of machine-building, in particular to reducers used mostly in vehicles. Reducer has body in which drive and output shaft are placed and conical drive and drive wheels being in engagement.