

The invention proposed relates to building, in particular to protective coatings, and can be used to obtain corrosion-stable protective coatings for elements of buildings and constructions that are under effect of food acids. Corrosion-stable composition includes styrene, polystyrene, benzoyl peroxide and dimethyl-aniline. Additionally it includes ethylsilicate.