

The invention relates to the medicine, namely to the cardiology and may be used for predicting the hypertension in healthy persons. The method comprises the measurements of the systolic arterial pressure and heart rate prior to and after psychoemotional load. The hypertension may be predicted based on the increase in the values measured.