

The invention relates to immunology field and may be used for revealing and identification of viral-neutralizing antibodies in mono- and polyvalent serums.

An express-method comprises mixing of a serum with unknown virus, introducing of this mixture into a system of viral reproduction, its incubation and result accounting.