

The invention relates to pipeline fittings, in particular to quick lifting two-seat valves with shutoff elements that move normally with respect to seat surface and are washed with flow of medium at open valve and can be used in pipe engineering, for instance for protection of turbo-expanders. Two-seat valve has body with inlet and outlet branch pipes separated with spatial partition.