

The invention relates to oil and gas industry and is intended for initiation of productive wells. The method includes opening of productive bed with well and ignition of charges of explosive substance in liquid in well.