

The invention relates to medicine, namely to the technique for diagnosing pancreatonecrosis in the patients with pancreatitis. A method comprises the assessment of methane content in the blood. The content exceeding 0.005% (by volume) is indicative of pancreatonecrosis.