

The invention relates to the field of machine-tool construction. In this method a trajectory of displacement of grinding wheel in the system of coordinates XOY is built, to the components and grinding wheel a rotary motion is given, and to grinding wheel additionally - movement in two mutually perpendicular directions along the axes X and Y of the system of coordinates XOY along built trajectory.