

The invention relates to field of machine tool building, in particular to designing gasostatic units and can be used in precision machines for especially neat surfaces processing. Aerostatic axial support has a body in which movable unit is placed, this is arranged as a shaft and toe, and jets for gas supply to gaps installed with gaps with respect to toe at both sides of base, and unit of gas stabilization.