

The invention relates to working of metals by pressure, in particular to the tool of cold mills, and it can be used for manufacture of pipes, bars, profiles and other lengthy articles. A built-up roller contains a round shaft, a intermediate cylindrical bushing installed on the shaft and bandage, on perimeter of which a rolling pass is located.