

The invention relates to construction, in particular to the multistorey apartment house with premise for switching equipment. A multistorey apartment house includes one or several entrances with living and at least one non-living storeys, a separate premise for switching equipment.