

The invention relates to agricultural machine-building, in particular to pneumatic seeders with the working air pressure exceeding the atmospheric one. A seed-feeding unit comprises a seed liquid with a metering shutter, in the bottom of which a seed cell is arranged, above thereof a guide for discharging "excessive" seeds is combined with the shutter for changing the capacity of the cell.